

18th May, 2007

Dear Australian Computer Society

The School of Computer and Information Science, University of South Australia, recognises the successful completion of the ACS Diploma of Information Technology.

Students who successfully complete the Diploma will be granted credit in the following UniSA undergraduate programs:

- Bachelor of Information Systems (DBIN) – 36 units (8 courses)
- Bachelor of Computer and Information Science (LBCP) – 36 units (8 courses)
- Bachelor of Information and Communication Technology (Networking) (LBNL) – 36 units (8 courses)
- Bachelor of Business (Management of Information Technology) (DBMS) – 27 units (6 courses)
- Bachelor of Software Engineering (LBSG) – 27 units (6 courses)
- Bachelor of Information Technology (Computing & Multimedia) (MBIC) – 31.5 units (7 courses)

General information about the University of South Australia is available at www.unisa.edu.au

Further details about the School of Computer and Information Science is available at www.cis.unisa.edu.au

Enquiries should be directed via email to: cis.enquiries@unisa.edu.au. Alternatively, contact the School directly:

Phone: +61 8 8302 3201

Fax: +61 8 8302 3381

Yours sincerely

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read 'Anthony Sobey', with a stylized flourish at the end.

Dr. Anthony Sobey

Acting Associate Head of School: Academic Programs
School of Computer and Information Science
University of South Australia